RED CROSS TO SEEK MEMBER INCREASE

15 Per Cent Gain To Be Sought In Roll Call In County This Year

El Dorado County Red Cross chapter has been asked to work for a fifteen per cent increase in enrollment this year in connection with the plans of the national organization for matching the pace of the nation-wide defense effort.

The Roll Call, opening on November 11 and continuing until Thanksgiving which is being observed this year on November 20, will be under the chairmanship of Mrs. R. A. Sinclair, who is completing her committee appointments.

Mrs. Charles Hand has been named on Roll Call publicity and Mrs. A. A. McKinnon will be the Roll Call supply chairman. The partial list of worker chairmen includes Mrs. M. T. Kelly for the residential area in Placerville and vicinity and Mrs. T. S. Marlor for the business centers. Other chairmen thus far appointed include:

Mrs. Kenneth Juster, south side; Mrs. Walter Drysdale, Georgetown; Mrs. John B. Schaffert, American River canyon; and Mrs. Violet Reaside, Lotus and vicinity.

Other chairmen are to be appointed in the rural sections of the county to the end that the largest possible number of residents may be afforded an opportunity to join in the support of the Red Cross work.

Preparations for the Roll Call were a high-light of the recent week. A high-light of the recent meeting of the chapter directorate at which Thomas A. Gill, field representative of the Pacific division, was a visitor. Various departmental chairmen of the chapter made reports on the year's work.

The national Red Cross through its Home Service department is co-operating in connection with the armed forces by investigating instances where it is reported that men in the armed services are needed for the support of dependents.

SPECIAL SESSION TO REDUCE STATE TAXES IS URGED

The Little Fellows, Inc., Cite Finance Director's Estimate Of $11,000,000 Surplus Next June, In Supporting Move

By JOHN W. DUNLAP
United Press Staff Correspondent

SACRAMENTO, (AP)—Pressure on Governor Culbert Olson to call a special legislative session to slash state taxes is increasing but from all indications he still holds the theory that a surplus is better than a deficit and probably will not yield to tax-reductionists' demands.

The latest move in this direction came from the assembly interim committee on governmental efficiency and economy. Hardly had this body completed organization under chairman C. Don Field, Republican from Glendale, than it went into executive session and drafted a resolution requesting a special tax reduction legislative session.

No little credit for the resolution was given to assembly speaker Gordon H. Garland, Woodlake Democrat, who still is ranking from the defeat of his tax reduction program at the 1941 session. Garland was present at the executive session and was one of the 11 committeemen to sign the resolution.

The others, many of them members of the bi-partisan anti-Olson bloc in the lower house, were Field, Rodney L. Turner, Bernard A. Sheridan, Franklin J. Potter, Sam L. Collins, Dr. Jesse Kellems, Clyde Watson, Frederic F. Houser, Jacob Leonard and Ernest Crowley.

Last week Lee T. Bashore, a potential candidate for lieutenant governor on the Republican ticket, also called on Olson to summon a tax reduction session.

The committee declared the tax problem "should have the early consideration of all members of the legislature in order that remedial action may be taken now."

Unlike Garland's proposed $60,000,000 tax cut program, the committee resolution proposed no specific slash but pointed out the need for reductions to offset increased federal defense levies. It cited that state revenues probably will exceed authorized expenditures by from $90,000,000 to $100,000,000 during the present biennium and noted that new federal levies impose added burden of $240,000,000 on California taxpayers. Henceforth, the resolution said, the state's share of taxes will reach "the staggering sum of over $700,000,000 a year."

All citizens throughout the state will feel the impact of these additional taxes and will be called upon to make sacrifices, the resolution said.

In view of these unprecedented tax demands of the federal government, made necessary by national defense, it is the patriotic duty of state and local governments to conserve their tax resources in order to assist in financing the great emergency that faces the nation," the resolution declared.

The Little Fellows, Inc., a Los Angeles organization of little business men, also has taken up the cry for tax reduction. In a letter to the governor, Fred Frank, secretary, emphasized the necessity for immediate consideration of tax reductions to help preserve the "thousands of little fellows throughout the state who are struggling against conditions created by limited materials and heavy tax requirements."

Referring to statements of State Finance Director George Killian estimating that an $11,000,000 surplus in the state treasury would be reached June 30, 1942, with a possibility of $50,000,000 by June 30, 1943, Frank pointed out that a recent survey by his organization showed small concerns pay an average state tax of $1200 each annually.

"In view of imminent strangulation of many small firms in a position to accept defense contracts, I urge consideration of a special session early in January for decision on the matter of reduced taxes, supporting a similar request made recently by Assemblyman Lee T. Bashore of the 49th district," Frank said.

RUSSIA NOTES REVERSES IN DONETS AREA

German Successes In Industrial Section Held Serious Threat To Soviets

By JOE-ALEX MORRIS
U. P. Foreign News Editor

Massed German tanks pounded to within 40 miles of Moscow's southwest suburbs today and drove deep into the Donets industrial basin, reporting capture of Stalino and advancing strongly toward Rostov.

Moscow radio advices and reports to London military experts indicated that the Nazi advance into the industrial centers of the Donets area may be even more critical than the immediate threat to Moscow.

The German high command claimed the capture of Stalino, important steel fabricating center which, with other developments indicated that the Germans already have overrun at least half or more of the Donets industrial cities.

Nazi sources said that in the four months of fighting since the Russian campaign was launched June 22 they have occupied about 338,000 square miles of Russian territory with population of about 65,000,000, about one third that of Russia. They now hold 17 of the 81

Judge Pierovich Speaker; Club Votes To Meet On Monday, November 10th

Placerville Lions will hold their meeting of the Armistice Day week on Monday, November 10, at Hotel Raffles.

This is according to a vote of the club at its regular meeting Tuesday after a consideration of the circumstances that the regular meeting day is a holiday.

The club's guest speaker for the day was Lion Judge A. L. Pierovich, of Jackson, who was presented to the club by Lion Harry Bell, of the October entertainment committee. Making some reference to his numerous visits with the club during his term as State Senator, Lion Pierovich expressed his interest in meeting with the club at this time and expressed regret that since his advancement to the bench the opportunities to meet with the Placerville Lions have not come so frequently as in the past.

Judge Pierovich reviewed, in general terms, the current national defense effort and pointed out some of the opportunities which are afforded private citizens to support that effort.

Lion President B. E. Larson presided and an announcement by Lion Secretary Arthur Mart called attention to a ladies night meeting of the Roseville Club on October 23 at Florida Inn, at which District Governor Clifford Johnson, of Arbuckle, will be the guest of the evening.

Mountain Lion Found In Camino Ditch Tuesday

Employees of El Dorado Irrigation District dug the carcass of a mountain lion from the ditch above Camino near the Don M. Hoffman residence Tuesday morning.

The carcass, which Secretary-Manager Walter Jenkinson said had been in the ditch "quite a while," was discovered by Frank McCarroll, acting county engineer in the absence of Mr. Hoffman.

Jenkinson said that the lion was "a big one," but expressed doubt that a bounty could be claimed.

CHANGE NOTED IN MINE LAW

Ninety-Day Limit Now On Posting, Recording Locations Of Claims

Changes in the law regarding mining claims have been called to the attention of California miners by State Mineralogist Walter W. Bradley. Bradley points out that considerable leniency has been extended, compared to the previous law, regarding claims, tunnel locations and millsites, recording the notice of location, marking the boundaries and performance of discovery work.

Following is the text of the new statute:

"Within 90 days after the posting of his notice of location upon a lode mining claim, placer claim, tunnel right or location, or millsite claim or location, the locator shall record a true copy of the notice together with a statement of the markings of the boundaries as required in this chapter and of the performance of the required discovery work, in the office of the county recorder of the county in which such claim is situated. The county recorder shall receive a fee of one dollar ($1) for this service."

With notice of location there must be recorded a statement that there has been sunk a discovery shaft, tunnel or adit at least 10 feet in depth or length, or an open cut from which there has been removed not less than seven cubic yards of material. This discovery work must be completed within 90 days from the date of location of the claim.

A location of either lode or placer mining ground is null and void unless the discovery work is duly performed and a true copy of the location recorded within 90 days from the date of location.

"Civil War" In Yugoslavia

London Paper Says Berlin Reports Croatia, Serbia Conditions Are "Grave"

BY UNITED PRESS

The London Exchange Telegraph agency quoted Berlin reports today that "civil war" was raging in former Yugoslavia and that more blood had been spilled than Britain had lost in all the war.

Since the outset of the Russian-German war, more than 700 Serbs and Croats—including women—have been hanged and shot, not counting hundreds killed in fighting, the Exchange Telegraph said.

"Hardly any days pass without acts of sabotage, burnings, and retaliations by both sides," it said.

The Berlin reports summarized, according to the Telegraph's Zurich correspondent, that the situation in Croatia and Serbia was "extremely grave," and all efforts to crush the guerrillas had failed. It was said they had fortified mountain hideouts from which they conducted surprise raids.

Reports from Vichy indicated that German reprisals—possibly the execution of more hostages—were feared because of the assassination of Lieut. Col. Karl Friedrich Holtz, German commander of the important Nantes area on the occupied French coast. He was killed yesterday while on his way to his office near the Nanes Cathedral.

The London radio, heard in New York, reported that 4000 Poles had been arrested in the Wlino area for espionage, and the Moscow radio, transcribed in London, said 50 Belgian journalists, civil servants, and priests and teachers had been executed thus far in October, of a total of 400 arrested for anti-German activities.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

By STANLEY

Love in Disguise

by MARY KEAS

Peggy O'Toole, Irish-American girl, after breaking her engagement to George ("Jimmie") Meredith, is injured in an accident. The doctors say she may never walk again. Jimmie begs her to renew their engagement, but she thinks his proposal is prompted by pity, so she refuses him. Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Greer, take her to Paris to see a specialist. There she meets Lieutenant Paul Rimini, young Italian air officer on leave. He is greatly attracted to Peggy. His aunt, the Comtesse de Bryse, invites Peggy and her grandparents to the opera but, when Paul calls for them, he finds Peggy in tears. She has just been told by the specialist that he can do nothing for her. Paul comforts her.

CHAPTER XXVI

WHEN Paul returned to the living room, the Greers looked up anxiously.

"How is she now?" they asked simultaneously.

"Feeling better," he reported. "I tried to persuade her to come to the opera—it would do her good—but she doesn't feel equal to it."

"No, I'm afraid we can't," now Mrs. Greer apologized. "Please tell your aunt how sorry we are—and explain to her, won't you?"

"Of course, we'll understand," Paul assured her.

Mrs. Greer sighed. "Poor little Peggy—poor child! She has taken this so hard—I wish we could make it up to her in some way."

"Yes," her husband nodded. "We must get her away from Paris at any rate. Perhaps a trip to the south of France..."

Paul got an idea. "Do you think she would like that?" he asked eagerly. "My aunt has a little villa down there—an ideal spot. Would you care to take her there?"

Mr. and Mrs. Greer looked at each other.

"But my dear boy! the old man protested. 'Your offer is most kind but it is possible your aunt might have ideas of her own in the matter.'"

"Oh, Aunt Louise would be delighted! I'm sure! She said just this morning that she was going to the villa—wanted me to come with her. I know she would be most happy to have you with us."

Mrs. Greer shook her head. "I still believe that the Comtesse would scarcely care to have virtual strangers thrust upon her as house guests."

"Not at all!" Paul protested. "She is the most hospitable person in the world—and my friends are her friends. Won't you let me speak to her?"

"Well..." Mrs. Greer wavered. "Good!" said Paul, picking up his hat. "You shall hear from her soon!"

The very next morning, Mrs. Greer found a little note in her mail—a cordial invitation from the Comtesse de Bryse to the Greers and their granddaughter to come to her home for an indefinite visit.

"The boy certainly believes in wasting no time!" Mr. Greer said, smiling.

The Comtesse was a charming hostess and seemed eager to make her guests feel thoroughly at home. Peggy liked her immediately and felt that she was liked in return in a very short time. They had become fast friends.

Meanwhile Paul was becoming increasingly attentive, and Peggy grew fonder of him every day. He was so thoughtful, so solicitous of her, and at the same time so delightfully gay just to be with him, cheered her.

She found herself wondering just how deep her affection for him went. She searched her heart for him. She was falling in love with him? But no—much as she liked him, she knew she was not in love with him.

For always at the back of her mind, there lingered the thought of Jimmie. She could not get him out of her thoughts—out of her heart. He was always there, lurking in the background.

Paul was like a brother to her, but he could not stir in her the wild surge of emotions that Jimmie had stirred—before everything had gone to pieces.

ONE day a few weeks after her arrival at the villa she and the Comtesse were seated together on the terrace. They had been talking idly of casual things, but gradually the conversation had taken on a more intimate tone.

"Since you've appeared on the scene," the Comtesse was saying, "I've begun to have hopes for Paul. He's always been so shy with girls that I had almost given him up in despair."

"Paul—shy? Peggy repeated in surprise. Why only the second day he knew me, he climbed my balcony and kidnapped me!"

The Comtesse smiled wisely. "Yes—I know. That's why I have hopes for him. He's really an awfully nice boy, my dear."

"I know," Peggy said softly. "And I'm awfully fond of him."

"But not in the same way that he likes you?" the Frenchwoman probed gently.

Peggy turned her head away and did not answer.

"Perhaps there is some one else—a boy back home?"

Peggy hesitated, then said "Yes"—there is, I've told Paul about him. But... She stopped. Why go into that?

"I see," said her hostess and said no more.

THAT evening for a brief period just before dinner Peggy found herself alone in the library. Idly she picked up the Paris edition of a New York paper that lay on a table at her side. She skimmed through it.

Then suddenly, her eyes fell on an item in a society gossip column and froze to it.

Rumors from New York have it that young George Meredith, popular scion of the emporium Merediths who has settled down in his father's store after his fling as a taxi-driver last year is paying considerable attention to beautiful Ricka Rice, socialite sportswoman. Looks like a romance.

The paper fell from Peggy's hand as she stared bleakly into space.

Sportswoman. Well, that was the type of girl Jimmie should marry, some one who could enjoy an active life with him—not a cripple now known to be hopelessly afflicted.

She blinked rapidly as her grandfather entered the room.

Nutria on a Budget

THIS THREE-PIECE ensemble of nutria costs less than $300 yet creates an air of elegance. Worn by Dolores Gille of the CBS "The Story of Mary Marlin" series, the coat features new full sleeves gathered at the wrist and wrap-around silhouette. Her tri-cornered cloche is trimmed with perky brown felt feelers and the muff is the purse variety. (From Debutante Furs.)

Russia Notes Nazi Gains

largest cities of Russia, the spokesman claimed.

London dispatches, based on the reports of Moscow radio and of the British military sources, said the Red army has held fairly firm in the Moscow circle but has been forced back slightly around Maloyaroslavets to a point about 50 miles from Moscow and to the vicinity of Naro Fominsk, about 40 miles from Moscow. A strong Nazi attack is under way toward Podolsk, 19 miles from Moscow's southern suburbs, it was reported.

The Royal Air Force, checked for many days because of bad weather, last night was able to resume large-scale action. It attacked Bremen, Wilhelmshaven, Emden and the invasion coast of France on a fairly large scale with an estimated 200 planes.

Resumption of RAF action came as a deputation from nine large London factories submitted to Prime Minister Winston Churchill representations calling for more direct and immediate aid to Russia and demanding the removal from office of Capt. David Margesson, war minister, Viscount Halifax, ambassador to the United States, and other officials charged with being lukewarm to aid-to-Russia.

Ankara heard that Germany is sending another division, possibly 15,000 troops, to North Africa and that Italy is dispatching air reinforcements, presumably in anticipation of early British offensive action in Libya.

The Turks also heard that German activity in Greece and Bulgaria is being intensified, possibly in anticipation of operations against the Caucasus.

FARM PARADE

Export of American farm products began a sharp decline when the war broke out, but since spring they have been picking up. It now looks as if exports next year will be about twice as large as they were this year.

Despite this sudden upsurge, next year's figures still will be below normal.

Last spring, exports of farm products dropped to the lowest level in 74 years. America's big customer—Great Britain—was buying mainly from her own empire. But the lend-lease appropriation is sure to give added stimulus to the trend.

These increases won't mean much to wheat or to cotton. But there will be some added market for tobacco harvested before 1941.

However, the real increase in export demand will be for such items as pork and eggs. The agriculture department predicts that export of pork and eggs next year will be three times as great as it is this year. Exports of dairy products and canned fruits should double the next year. Exports of lard and canned fruits should double during the next year. Exports of lard and dried fruits also should be about 50 per cent larger next year.

Here's a new wrinkle in the poultry industry. The United States is using air express to ship hatching eggs to the Argentine.

Already, 200 eggs have been flown to Buenos Aires. The eggs are the finest types of breeding eggs that the government has produced on its experimental farm in Beltsville, Maryland. They are being sent at the special request of the Argentine ambassador to the United States. He explains that his country needs the hatching eggs to introduce high-quality laying poultry in Argentina.

Speaking of eggs, it looks as if this country will turn out a record breaking amount of poultry and eggs next year. The way for this record production has been opened by the 14 per cent increase in poultry flocks this year.

With the increase now expected, the agriculture department's annual outlook report indicates that we probably will reach our 1942 food for defense goals for both chickens and eggs. The outlook also indicates more turkeys next year.

BALANCED BUDGET IN JULY IS HOPE OF STATE CONTROLLER

SACRAMENTO, (UP)—State Controller Harry B. Riley today predicted that the state budget will be balanced by next July if the state's present financial trend continues and no special appropriations are voted by the legislature.

The general fund cash deficiency stood at $34,718,560 on Sept. 30, declared Riley, compared with $68,854,682 a year earlier, almost exactly a 50 per cent reduction. The high point of the deficiency was $92,110,559 on June 30, 1940.

A $10,224,699 increase in revenue in the first three months of this fiscal year compared with the first quarter of last year, combined with a decrease of $1,201,329 in expenditures to improve the state's position, the controller's report said.

GET THE HATCH—READ WARDEN

This is one of a series of illustrated articles designed to inform the public of the progress being made by American industry in providing the weapons for national defense. The facts have been gathered in surveys of leading defense industries and from other authoritative sources.

An example of the tremendous job American industry is performing in the defense emergency is to be found in the report of one large turbine-producing firm to its stockholders.

In answer to the Navy's call on this company for vastly increased production of turbines and other equipment for our warships, it has greatly expanded its plant facilities and is now operating on a 24-hour-a-day schedule.

COLOMA YOUTH WRITES HOME OF LIFE IN ARMY AT FORT LEONARD WOOD, MISSOURI; ENTERED SERVICE JULY 21

So many of the friends of George H. Metcalfe, Jr., of Coloma, have expressed so great an interest in his letters home from his Army station at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri, that Mrs. Metcalfe has made some of them available for publication.

George left Placerville July 21, 1941, and was sent to Monterey and from there, on July 25th, to Missouri.

Matters of purely personal interest have been deleted from the following letters:

In the 40 years of its existence, the central station industry has built up in this country an active steam-generating capacity of some 41,500,000 horsepower, the report states. And now this firm is engaged on a program calling for the delivery in three years' time for a quantity of steam turbines, for all purposes, amounting to more than a third of that total capacity.

These huge turbines are to be installed in the numerous units of this country's two-ocean navy, now building. They are for propulsion and auxiliary equipment to drive the battleships, cruisers, destroyers, aircraft carriers, net layers, repair ships, mine layers and tenders.

Many of this plant's turbine workers voluntarily went without vacations to complete ahead of schedule.

Sept. 3, 1941. We had a vacation over Labor Day so I took a trip to Lake Ozark. Jefferson City and St. Louis. I went fishing in Lake Ozark but no luck as fish not biting. I got the dope on the quail hunting here and hope I am here when the season opens in November. I had a good time over the holiday and saw a lot of country. Saw the Missouri and Mississippi rivers and was disappointed in the Mississippi as it is rather small at St. Louis. Had time to see the Zoo in St. Louis, one of the largest in the world. It was very interesting. I did not get to see the ball game as my pass was up.

OPAL, the October stone

OPAL combines every shade of the rainbow in one stone.

The Roman Senator, Nonius, preferred exile rather than sell his Opal ring to Marc Anthony for Cleopatra—Queen Victoria was especially proud of her opal collection. The false "unlucky" idea came from a careless reading of a Sir Walter Scott novel—but the discovery of black opals in Australia in 1902 stemmed the tide of this erroneous superstition. Most opals, both white and black, come from Australia today. The whites are still called Hungarian (name of the type) though mines in Hungary were exhausted in the 1880s—"black" or "Australian" opals, are those whose "body" color are anything but white (or near white). Mexican opals are quite transparent but of any body color. "Nevada opals" are "glassy," "brittle" type.

COLOMA YOUTH WRITES HOME OF LIFE IN ARMY CAMP

Went to St. Louis last Sunday and enjoyed the ball game. Brooklyn beat St. Louis. Also saw a lot of the business district. All the pears I saw in St. Louis on the peddlers' carts were Placerville Maids 5 cents each and looked good. We had Placerville Maids passed out at mess last Friday. As they were not quite ripe I saved mine till Monday and it was very good. No bruises or marks of any kind. Both boxes I saw were in good shape.

I finished shooting on the range and shot 147 (out of 200) for my record. That was good enough to qualify for marksman but I should have done better. This week we are working on combat problems. Was talking to Charlie Kessler tonight and he misses the hunting and fishing too. Be sure and write me the hunting news. Am getting all The Democrats and enjoy them.

We go on field rations next month. At present we have milk, eggs, bacon, fruit, the very best meat they can buy, also ice cream, chicken and fruit juices occasionally.

It has been raining here lately and we get soaked every once in a while but don't mind as I always have dry clothes when I come in.

Sept. 25, 1941. Monday we left for the river (Big Piney River) for five days of pontoon bridge building. It was a five mile hike with full pack (50 lbs.) and some of the boys were a little leg weary when we arrived. We pitched our pup tents and were to sleep in them for five nights, but the weather altered our plans. Wednesday it started to rain and if you think you have seen a mess you should have seen our battalion (1000 men) after six hours of steady downpour. Some of the tents were not drained and soon flooded out, others blew over when the tent stakes pulled out. Everyone was out working when the rain started and got soaked before returning to camp. We stood in line for mess in the pouring rain and ate standing up under a leaky shelter. I went to bed about six and had my shelter to myself as it was leaking on my partner's side and he headed for a barn at 6:30 they passed out extra blankets and at 7:00 gave the order to take our blankets and pull out. The captain called for guards to volunteer for the rest of the night for guard duty and as I was soaked anyway I stayed and helped guard what was left of the camp. The rest of the battalion went back to barracks and came out again this morning. We guards got the the day off and go back tomorrow morning. This camp in the rain is the first tough deal we have had but I didn't mind much. It was amusing though tragic to see the mess a bunch of rookies can create in the mud.

Sept. 30, 1941. When we go out in the woods for combat problems and I hear the firecrackers popping, I think of the hunting season at home.

This last weekend I took a trip to Neosho via Springfield and Joplin. Went down there to see the country and visit a government fish hatchery. The hatchery was interesting though their busy season was over and all the equipment not in operation. I did see a whole flock of rainbow trout about 20 inches long and nice and fat. Also saw some bass. My next trip will be to see some prairie chickens if I can persuade one of the wardens to take me out with him. May get to see some white tail deer. They don't have any open season on deer here although the country looks ideal for them. We saw ducks and geese last week at pontoon school. I like this country very much and it is even nicer down near Neosho. There is more farm land down there and they say there are lots of quail there. They are building a new camp at Neosho and I might be sent there.

Today was pay day and we got paid off. It rained hard this morning and there is plenty of mud around here now. They are getting the roads and streets paved and and oiled as fast as they can, so we can use them in the winter. It has rained frequently and hard here and we often get soaked.

The leaves are starting to turn color though we have had no frost yet. The woods are interesting back here as there are many fruits, nuts, and berries. Almost every time we go out we find something to eat. There are walnuts, hickory nuts, pig nuts, hazel nuts, persimmons, grapes, plums, crabapples, etc. By the way, this is excellent coon and opossum country here. I still have not gone fishing in the river but hope to soon. Lights.

Old West Spirit Urged

SALT LAKE CITY (UP)—Advocating the teaching of old American history, Dr. Howard Driggs, president of American Pioneer Trails Association, said that one sure way to ensure national defense and bring about patriotism is to put the romantic history of the Old West to work.

Your Retail Grocer is America's First Line of Defense

HEALTH GIVES VIGOR TO OUR NATIONAL DEFENSE EFFORT!

From Maine to California, from the Gulf to the Great Lakes, a great army is operating in the defense of America. This army is made up of America's retail grocers... men who occupy a front line position in our battle for national welfare. They're the ones, part of a vast, efficient system, that puts the finest foods in the world on your table... they're the ones who are defending America's health—without them, without health, no gigantic national defense program such as is in progress now would be possible! Good food builds a strong nation. Your grocer, and those with whom he cooperates, makes good food available to you, and at prices as reasonable as economic conditions permit. Salute your grocer this week by visiting him, partaking of his special Grocer's Week values, by getting acquainted with America's first line of defense!
